Celebrating Our Local Growers — Mid Atlantic Region

Homestead Farms Poolesville, MD

"There has always been someone in my family that has farmed. Our family's grandfathers, fathers, uncles, nephews, grandsons have farmed this same land for the last 240 years," says Ben Allnut of Homestead Farms.

Today, Ben carries on the farming tradition, farming 270 acres of land that has been in his family since 1763.

"Because we are local, our produce can stay on the vine or stalk an extra few days before it's picked for

Whole Foods, which is what makes our produce sweeter and more flavorful."
